College station WMTC was founded by the Clarkson Germanic Society in 1947. After much preparatory work the station went on the air for the first time on March 27, 1948. At that time it was housed on the second floor of the Executive Building. This arrangement proved to be unsatisfactory for expansion, so the lot of the barn on the Potsdam State Teachers College campus was acquired. Here was built, entirely through the efforts of the students of Clarkson College and Potsdam State Teachers College, a small studio, a control room, a record library, an ante room, and a large studio to accommodate forty persons. A new console and transmitter have been acquired recently.

As an activity, the station offers excellent opportunities both in entertainment and administration.

WMTC is a member of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, and is owned and operated jointly by Clarkson College and Potsdam State Teachers College.

Radio station WCOT, Malone, is operated by the Malone Branch Radio Club on a carrier current basis one hour per night, live nights a week. This year the membership constructed a new studio in Gilpin Hall, from which all broadcasts to Malone and vicinity are made.
